

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY IS DROWNED IN CANAL; WANDERS FROM HOME WITH A BABY COUSIN; MOTHER RECOVERS BODY

Valiant Attempt Made to Resuscitate David George, Jr., of Bristol Terrace I—Little Girl Lipped Message to Relatives That David Was "Down There in the Water"

A two-year-old boy was drowned in the canal this morning when he wandered away from his home at 100 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace I. The victim, David George, Jr., was found in the water by his mother, an aunt, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, and the child's grandmother, Mrs. John King. They carried the tot to his home and summoned aid.

Bucks County Rescue Squad, Bristol Blood Donors Emergency Squad, Good Will Hose Company No. 3, Bristol police, and neighbors went to the aid of the victim.

Rescue squads worked with inhalators, resuscitators, and Dr. S. H. Lanyon and Dr. Philip Tulin arrived shortly after the rescue squads.

Despite the valiant efforts of those attempting to revive the little tot they were all in vain.

The mother had to be administered sedatives.

The story as related by friends of the family was that little David, in company with his cousin, Barbara Ann Gallagher, 2, who lives nearby had wandered to the canal while playing. When the children were missed from the lawn near their home, Mrs. George, Mrs. Gallagher, and the child's grandmother began an extensive search of the vicinity. They saw little Barbara Ann coming from the direction of the canal and when they inquired where David was the little girl in her hisping voice informed them that he was down there in the water.

The three adults ran to the canal and Mrs. George waded into the water up to her waist and pulled out her son. He was then rushed to his home.

In addition to the victim there is another son, John 5. The father is employed at Fleetwings plant.

"Ladies Night" Conducted By the Men's Fellowship

Harry C. Stevens, head of the small arms department of Frankford Arsenal, gave a patriotic address when he appeared before the Men's Christian Fellowship League of Lower Bucks County, last evening, on the occasion of "Ladies Night." The program was in Bristol Methodist Church.

Mr. Stevens, introduced by the president of the Fellowship, Raymond Dewees, of Newportville, told much of the work of the Dies Committee, and particularly of the activities of that committee two years ago when it upset plans of enemy agents here to hinder factory production. He also gave some attention to juvenile delinquency and steps necessary to cope with it.

Guest vocalists favored with selections.

Honor Mothers at The Newportville Services

NEWPORTVILLE, May 16—The Sunday School of Newportville Community Church observed Mothers' Day on Sunday morning, the senior and junior Ladies' Bible classes taking part, and Mrs. James Barclay, teacher of the senior group announcing the program.

The platform was decorated with plants and flowers. Mrs. Fred Kohler offered prayer, followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Herman Becker. The senior mothers sang in unison "What A Friend We Have in Jesus." Mrs. John Lowrie favored by her daughter Naomi. The junior mothers sang "I Would Be True."

C. Burnley White then spoke briefly to the mothers. The primary department assembled in a group on the platform and sang three songs. Due to war conditions, plants were not distributed to all mothers as usual, but plants were given to Mrs. C. B. Collins as president of the Ladies' Senior Bible Class; to Mrs. William Beck and Mrs. George Erney, who have been ill; and to Mrs. Fred Cotshott and Mrs. Albert Thompson, the oldest mothers.

J. E. Scheidel pronounced the benediction. One hundred and forty-seven were present.

Those in the armed services attending Sunday School on Sunday were: Raymond Pierson, A. M. 2/c, from Atlantic City Naval Station, N. J.; and Clifford N. Ingraham, A. O. M. 2/c, from the Naval Air Station, Cape May, N. J.

Presenting a paper on the subject, "What a Mother Owes Her Child," at the Mothers' Day meeting of the Plumsteadville Grange, Mrs. Arthur Shurr brought out the point that a lack of parental supervision often is the cause for juvenile delinquency.

Juvenile delinquency, said Mrs. Shurr, may be considered a forerunner of what may follow in the life of the individual. Juvenile delinquency, she continued, cannot be blamed entirely upon the war, but because of the lack of discipline in the home. Principles which at one

Naples—Allied troops today threatened a decisive flanking movement against the Gustav line bulwark of Cassino by reaching the high way connecting that battered township with the sea.

German forces were hurled out of Spigno and strategic San Giorgio by hard-fighting American and French units which demoralized the southern sector of the enemy defense line and crushed all Nazi resistance in the Ausente Valley. Spearheads of Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's British Eighth Army severed the Cassino-Minturno lateral highway southwest of Cassino. "The Eighth Army now has little more than a mile to go to cut off Cassino from the rear," a battlefield dispatch said.

The Eighth Army's bridgehead in the Cassino sector now has been extended to two miles in depth. New spans are being thrown across the Rapido River to enable the steady augmentation of mechanical strength.

Students at Schools See What Stamp Purchases Do

Treasury representatives visited the public schools in Bensalem Township, Bristol and Morrisville boroughs yesterday with a half-truck armored truck, armed with anti-aircraft and machine guns. The truck such as the one accompanying the group is used in reconnaissance work.

The vehicle was brought to the schools to show to the children just what their ten-cent and 25-cent purchases of war stamps is doing in the war by furnishing equipment for the great global conflict.

In the group were C. V. Wilson-Lavery, treasury organizer; Russell E. Zehner, treasury department manager of Region 2 of the Penna. War Finance Committee; Edward J. Bloesner, Churchville, chairman for Bucks county; Mrs. J. Leslie Kilocone, and Mrs. E. Paul Patton, active workers in the sales of bonds and stamps in the Lower Bucks County area.

Judge Keller advised Crispino to get out of the liquor business at Plumsteadville even if it meant sacrificing his license, and the defendant assured the Court that negotiations are under way right now to sell out.

The court imposed a fine of $200 and costs on the bill charging unlawful sale of liquor on Sunday and suspended sentence on another bill.

VIOLATORS OF THE LIQUOR LAWS ARE HEARD IN COURT

State Liquor Control Board
Enforcement Agents
Have Their Inning

FINES ARE IMPOSED

Some Had Untaxed Liquor
in Their Hotels; Some
Sold on Sundays

DOYLESTOWN, May 16—State Liquor Control Board enforcement agents had their inning in Bucks county criminal court yesterday when it was testified how they ingratiated themselves into the confidence of liquor licensees and then had them arrested for liquor law violations.

Antonio Crispino, 54, operator of the LaCote Hotel at Plumsteadville, pleaded guilty before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to five different counts of violations of the liquor laws.

Crispino, who was a barber in Chester for a year before coming to Bucks county, and who worked in Easton before that as a barber, testified that Charles A. Haines, an enforcement agent, came to his place on March 11 (Saturday), and remained after 12 o'clock at night, ordering beer, whiskey and some brandy. He made another visit on April 15 (Saturday) and stayed after midnight when he made other purchases.

It was testified that Haines had been at Crispino's place on at least five occasions before the evidence-gathering visits and that the defendant had come to know the agent as "Charlie" and Haines called the defendant "Tony." But Crispino did not know that Haines was a Liquor Control Board Agent.

Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, representing Crispino, pointed out to the Court that the agent's investigation disclosed the fact that no other person except the agent himself had purchased liquor after the closing hour of 12 on Saturday night.

Judge Keller advised Crispino to get out of the liquor business at Plumsteadville even if it meant sacrificing his license, and the defendant assured the Court that negotiations are under way right now to sell out.

The court imposed a fine of $200 and costs on the bill charging unlawful sale of liquor on Sunday and suspended sentence on another bill.

Anna M. Boland, owner of the Hartsville Hotel, and her nephew, Charles Dugan, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of violation of the liquor laws pertaining to sales on Sunday and having liquor in possession that did not bear the Pennsylvania state stamp.

Judge Keller fined Mrs. Boland $100 and costs on one bill and suspended sentence on another. Dugan was fined $200 and costs on one bill and sentence was suspended on others.

Liquor Enforcement Officer testified.

Ghost Writing

Washington, May 13.

IN his book, "The Ghost Talks," Mr. Charles Michelson, who for nearly fifteen years was publicity director of the Democratic National Committee, opens up again the question of who writes the President's speeches and messages. This is not, to be sure, a very important question, but it is interesting.

THE important things, of course, are what is in these speeches and messages, and do they reflect Mr. Roosevelt's ideas. As to the latter there has never been any real question. They do. As to the contents, there is equally no question as to the quality of the writing, the choice of words and the forcefulness of the presentation. In the past twelve years, Mr. Roosevelt has made exceedingly few poor speeches. Even those who disagree with his policies admit they have been presented well.

BUT, Mr. Raymond Moley, for a number of years closer to Mr. Roosevelt than any other, and the late Gen. Hugh Johnson, who for a long time was his chief aide and intimate friends, have recorded that various persons, including themselves — did the writing. Among others to whom, from time to time, authorship has been ascribed are Mr. "Tommy" Corcoran, "Ben" Cohen, Rexford G. Tugwell, the late Louis Howe, Mr. Robert Sherwood and Mr. Archibald MacLeish.

And in this ghost writer list, too, belongs former Justice Sam Rosenman, who is looked upon as the current message writer. It was he, for example, to whom was attributed the tax veto message, which caused Senator Alben Barkley's sensational revolt.

FROM Mr. Moley and General Johnson the very clear impression

JUDICIAL PRECEDENTS

Again attention has been directed from within the Supreme Court—seven of the nine members of which were appointed by President Roosevelt and an eighth, Chief Justice Stone, promoted by him—to the internal conflicts besetting that tribunal, which have resulted in the overthrow of various established principles and doctrines of decisional law.

Before the American Law Institute, Justice Jackson expresses his concern over "the present low estate of the precedent" in the adjudication of cases. Two months ago when the court divided 5 to 4, he demanded in the dissent opinion: "Where does this court get authority to disregard the distinction Congress has created and to impose a single rule of its own making?"

Shortly before that Justice Roberts, joined by Justice Frankfurter, had denounced a majority finding that overruled a previous decision, charging that "this tendency has become so strong in this court as to shake confidence in the consistency of decision."

The strictures of Justice Roberts upon the court led to the inference that the fault lay mainly with a predilection of certain members of the court to exploit their individual philosophies even if they thereby made judicial hash of the law. The many separate opinions, as many as five in one case, go far to support such conclusion. But Justice Jackson in his Law Institute address advances a wholly different explanation that has at least the merit of novelty.

According to Justice Jackson, "haste and pressure are too ingrained in our modern lives to think courts can be free of them." The increase in the number of courts—courts of last resort, intermediate courts of appeal and special courts—has "increased the pace of decision and the output of opinion." In brief, legal opinion is subject to the same natural law that affects currency—"inflation of the volume decreases the value of each unit"—and "when so many issues of opinion compete for acceptance they inevitably suffer a discount."

This is a persuasive theory, but applying it to the Supreme Court one is required to gloss over much that has happened under the virtual reconstitution of that tribunal through deaths and resignations in the last five years. If the lower courts have become so ready to decide cases contrary to past decisions, is this to be laid to the "haste and pressure" of the times or to the fact that the Supreme Court is so confusingly divided within itself and is so prone to reverse its own precedents?

Certainly that court by its iconoclastic actions is not showing the guidance and leadership that it should extend to other jurisdictions.

General Patton is reported to have bragged that after he wins the war in Europe he will clean up the Japs. MacArthur will take care of that, George.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

is gained that the only part of his speeches which the President wrote himself was the peroration. He always, said Mr. Moley, liked to write that himself, with a lead pencil. The rest was all written for him. There is nothing to criticize about that. So long as the ideas are his own, it is, perhaps, sensible enough for the President to save himself labor by employing gifted writers to do the work. Of course, there have been some Presidents who never let anyone write anything for them, but there have been plenty of others who took the line which Mr. Moley and General Johnson say Mr. Roosevelt takes—to wit, delegate the job to trusted and talented friends, and content himself with making revisions and writing the last paragraph.

HOWEVER, Mr. Michelson dissents from this. His contention is that no one writes the Roosevelt speeches; that Mr. Roosevelt is a much better phrase maker than any of his aides; that it is his custom after his aides have put their views on paper to read them carefully, then lie down on a sofa, put his hands behind his head and dictate the final speech. This is in complete contrast to the Moley-

Johnson statements on the subject—and to the general belief. There are several reasons for thinking the Moley-Johnson view sounder than that of Mr. Michelson. One is that, in their day, both Mr. Moley and General Johnson had far closer personal relationships with the President than Mr. Michelson ever achieved. They had his complete confidence and were aides in a sense Mr. Michelson never was.

ANOTHER reason is that Mr. Michelson never got in a position where he could take a detached view of Mr. Roosevelt—and, if one judges from his book—is not in such position now. Certainly, throughout his adulation of Mr. Roosevelt and his general attitude toward him is that of an old family retainer rather than of an independent recorder. Also, there are the various inaccuracies scattered through the book, such, for example, as twice placing the Dayton evolution trial, at which he was present, in Kentucky, instead of Tennessee. And, of course, there are some who might consider as an additional reason for not accepting the Michelson view his gleeful account of his career as a faked account of the Hearst newspapers. Even as Mr. Michelson tells the story forty years afterward, it is not one greatly to enhance confidence in him as a narrator. However, aside from these things the book is interesting, well written and without humor, though it makes no contribution to political history.

IT IS somewhat surprising that a man who for 15 years has been in position to know what went on behind the scenes in politics apparently knew so little. Perhaps, it is because there wasn't a great deal to know. The "secrets" of politics are always exaggerated, as Mr. Michelson may have not had any "secrets" to reveal or he may have been too cautious to do any revealing. At any rate, no one would call his a very outspoken book. It is a little strange that he is not more appreciative of Mr. Raskob and Mr. Shouse, as they are the men who really rescued him from the New York World and put him in position to make his reputation. And, perhaps it was to be expected that in defending himself from the charge of conducting a systematic "smear" campaign against Mr. Hoover after his election to the Presidency, Mr. Michelson should indulge in a lot of little sneers and jeers at Mr. Hoover, well calculated to sustain the charge. They do not improve the book. Nor add to his own stature.

time were considered good are frequently regarded by the young people as being antique.

Too many parents, she said, go to work and leave their children in charge of persons who are incompetent to take care of them. Train a child in the way in which he should go and he will follow it, she said. "See that the children have good literature at their disposal, invite their friends into the home and give the children a religious training."

Activities of the Wycombe branch of the Red Cross were summarized at a meeting of the officers at the home of the chairman, Mrs. John Price Jones, near Pineville.

Report was made by Mrs. John W. Cooper, the treasurer, that a balance of $185.41 remains, and Mrs. Henry R. L. Eastwood gave a report for the surgical dressing committee.

According to Mrs. Eastwood, 32 persons were enrolled in the surgical dressing class. From November, 1942, until May, 1942, the members devoted 666 hours to the making of 13,188 dressings. She stated more workers are needed.

Community leaders were among the guests at a dinner meeting held in the school building at New Hope a few nights ago under the auspices of the local school board.

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint people of the community with the schools, and during the evening a dinner was served by the girls in the home economics department under the supervision of Miss Althea M. Smith, director of that department.

Principal J. H. Herring introduced County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm, who commented upon the value of such gatherings, and suggested the establishment of a circulating library with headquarters at the school so that the citizens of the community would have occasion to go to the school more frequently.

Among the guests was Dr. Arthur H. Washburn, of the Solebury Boys' School faculty, who emphasized the importance of discipline, which, he said, is claiming the attention of educators all over the country. The Army and Navy, he said, are proving young men like and respect discipline, and added that he believes juvenile delinquency can be reduced by strict discipline.

39 Served at Banquet Which Honors Mothers

Honoring their mothers, members of the Sunday School class of Bristol Methodist Church taught by Mrs. William Mohr conducted the annual Mother-Daughter banquet last evening in the church social hall. Covers were placed for 39.

To each mother attending a carnation was presented; and Mrs. Norman Rapp, honored as the oldest mother in attendance, was given a basket of flowers, these being a memorial for the mother of Mrs. Edwin Ballinger.

The menu served was: Fruit cocktail, chicken noodle soup, celery, olives, roast young turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, asparagus, cole slaw, rolls, ice cream, fancy cakes, coffee.

The invocation was by Mrs. Paul Simpson; followed by the welcome by Mrs. W. E. Preston Haas; remarks, Mrs. Mohr; poem, Miss Dorothy Case; symphony harp selections, "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Annie Laurie," and "Alohae," Miss Winifred V. Tracy.

Three sketches followed, these being entitled: "Happiness Candles," "Court Session," and "Orange Aid."

We thank Thee, O Father, for the beauty of the world, for the returning life in nature and for the revelation of Thee we see when we observe Thy handiwork. We thank Thee for the beauty which may come into our lives when we see and know Thy Son. We thank Thee for His transforming power—that He is able to change us from the undesirable to that which is to be desired, from failure to success, from death to life. May this power of Christ be manifest in our lives today. In His Name we pray. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"A Guy Named Joe," the new movie at the Grand Theatre, is a mellow and different romance, a delightful mixture of realism and fantasy guaranteed to please all movie audiences. In the Air Force any pilot is "a guy named Joe," and in the film, both Spencer Tracy and Irene Dunne, who co-star, are pilots.

Tracy is cast as a daredevil and foolhardy pilot whose exploits are the despair of his superior officers and the adorable Ferry Command pilot who loves him, played by Miss Dunne. Sensing that his number is up, she begs him to return to the States with her as an instructor. He accedes, but in a last reckless fling he is killed bombing an enemy carrier.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Director Andre De Toth has discovered that Hollywood screen kids are too well fed for their own screen good. And when he came to a scene which required the youngsters to register strained hunger in all its poignancy for "None Shall Escape," story of the post-war trials of Nazi leaders, now showing at the Bristol Theatre, the boys and girls looked too sated for realism.

OUT WHERE THE MILK BEGINS

Where else in all the world today will you find peaceful country scenes like this? Americans alone, among the nations of the earth, can look to their farms for a sufficiency of food on which to grow and work and fight.

Right now, for example, the spring-tide supply of fine, rich milk from nearby Supplee farms is making an important contribution to that sufficiency, playing a vital part in three separate ways:

1. In taking care of the increased needs of the community for this essential food.

2. In bringing refreshing nourishment to the men in the nearby Navy and Coast Guard stations, local hospitals and Army centers.

3. In being processed into proper forms for shipment abroad to help nourish our armies and fighting friends.

And that's how it happens that OUR DELIVERY OF MILK, CREAM AND OTHER DAIRY PRODUCTS TO YOU MUST REMAIN LIMITED BY GOVERNMENT QUOTA—why we must ask you to continue to work out your supply with your milkman.

Even though you may not be able to order all the extra milk you want to quench your family's warm-weather thirsts—you can still, we're proud to say, take your share in the milk that's extra rich and extra nourishing—carefully guarded Supplee Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk with the cream mixed throughout.

LANGHORNE LOSES TO MORRISVILLE IN SCHOOL LEAGUE GAME

LANGHORNE, May 16.—The Morrisville high school nine moved a step closer to the Lower Bucks County championship yesterday afternoon when it won over the Langhorne aggregation, 3-1.

The contest was a hurling match between Jack Lebegern, of the Bulldogs, and Al Schoenfeld, of Langhorne. Lebegern held the Redskins to a quartet of hits and blanked the Langhorne boys for five innings. Schoenfeld was touched for six hits, two going to Schlegle.

The victory put the Morrisville team a full game ahead in the Lower Bucks race.

DE RISI PITCHES A SHUT-OUT GAME HERE

"Mike" DeRisi gave a beautiful mound performance on the high school field last evening as he pitched the Fleetwings team to a shutout victory over the league-leading American Steel nine. Final score was: Fleetwings, 3; American Steel, 0.

DeRisi limited the Jersey boys to a trio of hits and while doing this was collecting a pair of hits for himself, having a double and triple to his credit and being robbed of an extra base hit on another occasion.

Jones started on the mound for the Steelers and was relieved by DiBascio in the sixth.

The Fleetwings team will play the Prison Officers tonight in Trenton.

Heed that he visited the Hartsville hotel on Feb. 12, Feb. 20 (both Saturdays) and stayed after midnight. Agent Snyder said that he went to the place with other agents and that sometimes they took their wives and enjoyed the evening at the hotel, buying drinks before and after midnight. They were served, Snyder testified, by Dugan.

On March 29, 1944, Snyder said that he and another agent went to the place at 1:45 p. m. and found the door closed, but were able to get in after they had talked with Dugan, and that they bought a drink at that time. Snyder said that by a pre-arranged plan, other Liquor Agents arrived shortly afterward and made a search of the hotel. Snyder testified that the agents found some 68 bottles of untaxed liquor on the second floor of the hotel.

Dugan admitted that he bought the untaxed liquor from a man from New Jersey, whom he did not know, and that it was delivered to the hotel by the salesman. The liquor included recognized brands and was not bootleg stuff.

Miss Boland testified that she owned the place and that Dugan worked for her on a salary and was paid a bonus when business warranted. She admitted that she gave Dugan the money to pay for all the liquor bought by the hotel and that he works as a manager of the place. No partnership exists, she testified. She testified that she did not know anything about Sunday sales charged against her nephew.

Dugan informed Judge Keller that he did not know that Snyder and the other agents were officers. He also stated that he had never received any kind of complaint from his neighbors as to how the Hartsville Hotel was operated.

Dugan said that the liquor salesman called him on the telephone and made an appointment to come to his hotel, and it was then that he bought the liquor and the man (apparently an Italian, Dugan said) delivered it to the hotel.

Dugan and his aunt were represented by Attorney John Ross, of Doylestown.

"I have known the defendants for a good many years," Judge Keller remarked. "It is quite likely that the increase in business with the big war plants nearby, has made your regular share of State Store liquor scarce. I would suggest to the defendant Miss Boland

ROHM & HAAS GOES DOWN TO DEFEAT; CASE PACKERS WIN

Bristol Nine Loses By The Score of 7 to 5 To Trenton Team

IN LEAD UP TO FOURTH

Carnvale Would Have Won
With Some Better
Support

TRENTON, May 16.—Playing sloppy ball in the first inning caused the Rohm and Haas team to go down to defeat last evening on Wetzels field as the Case Packers defeated the Bristol boys, 7-5.

The Packers took advantage of the playing and scored four times in the initial frame. They kept this lead until the fourth when "Eddie" Sullivan stole home to deadlock the score at 5-5 but in the last half of the fourth the Packers scored another pair of markers to cop the contest.

Manager Ken Munroe, of the chemical mixers, sent Pat Carnevale to the hill and with better support, Carnevale would have annexed the victory. He allowed five hits, several of which should have been put-outs but he added his own downfall with his wildness. In the last half of the fourth, Carnevale passed three batters to help the Casemen score the two runs which decided the issue.

Jesse Vansant found his batting eye and solved the two Packers' hurlers for a duo of doubles in two official trips to the plate.

Rohm and Haas returns to its home field tomorrow night meeting the Prison Officers.

that if you desire to continue in business at the hotel and renew your license that you get better acquainted with the regulations concerning taxed and untaxed liquors.

"The worst part about this case is the charge of selling untaxed liquors. When you buy from a man whose name you don't know, it's sure to be bad business."

Samuel Miller, 63, 187 South Main street, Doylestown, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to a charge of driving while drunk on the Old York road. He was fined $250 and costs.

Miller said that he had been drinking in the Doylestown hotels and tap rooms and that he did not remember leaving Doylestown in his car on this occasion, but wound up near Hartsboro. The officer testified that Miller was so drunk that he had to assist him out of the car. Miller had no accident.

The record showed that Miller

SUBURBAN LEAGUE OPENS SEASON TONIGHT; GAMES ARE SCHEDULED AT TWO DIAMONDS

The opening games of the Bristol Suburban League will be played tonight with games being scheduled on the Maple Beach and Cornwells Heights field. On the Maple Beach diamond, the Diamond team will play Voltz-Texaco while on the Bensalem Township high school field, the Aluminum Company team, of Burlington, will clash with Badenhausen. Games are scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock.

This marks the sixth season for the Suburban League and on the Maple Beach field, Paul Voltz, president, will toss out the first ball. Last season's champions, the Rohm and Haas team, withdrew from the circuit to enter the Trenton Industrial League.

The managers of the four clubs in the loop are: Voltz-Texaco, George Dougherty; Diamond Sporting team, Joseph Diamanti; Badenhausen, John Kemp; Aluminum Company of America, Forrest Eberle.

The team rosters are as follows: Voltz-Texaco—Vince Stratton, Howard Black, Harold Shackleton, Bill Leigh, Joe McDevitt, Bill Mur-

"Well, you have kept pretty straight for 16 years, so let's hope that you carry on for another 16 years at least," Judge Keller remarked to Miller.

"Your honor, I'm sure I will and if it goes that long I'll be nearly 80 then and maybe I won't be around here," Miller replied.

Miller has been employed at a Hartsboro manufacturing plant for the past 20 years and bears a good reputation.

the sponsorship by the State Auxiliary of blood donors day on May 31st, members from this area being requested to donate in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Zolot informed that William Hart had donated three hand-made waste-baskets for use in the new post home.

Plans were made for Memorial Day, with Mrs. James Tracy telling of her committee's arrangement for serving of the lunch to the Soby Post members, Drum and Bugle Corps, members of American War Mothers Chapter in this area, and any servicemen on furlough who can attend. The service of worship which the post and auxiliary will attend will take place on the Hulmeville school ground on Sunday, May 28th. The units will meet at the Hulmeville fire station at 10:30 and proceed to the school grounds. After luncheon in Grace Church parish house, Hulmeville, units will meet at the corner of Main street and Rietz avenue, Hulmeville, at 12:45 and march to the Beechwood Cemetery for memorial services. Service in Langhorne will be conducted at three o'clock with the Very Rev. N. Herbert Caley, rector of St. James' Church, speaking, at the Memorial House grounds.

Mrs. Frank Cassidy urged members to write their senators and congressmen, urging support of the "Bill of Rights" which will be of great aid to veterans.

The Drum and Bugle Corps will make a trip to the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, on June 26th, distributing gifts to the wounded men. The Auxiliary will contribute to the gifts. Two or three buses will be chartered for the trip, leaving between five and six p. m.

Members were addressed briefly by Mrs. William Riggs, a former Langhorne resident who has been living in the west for a number of years. Mrs. Riggs told of the Post and Auxiliary at Phoenix, Ariz., the post having a membership of about 1500 and the Auxiliary nearly 700. She informed that Arizona is known as a "missionary" state as far as post and auxiliary work go, so many veterans making their homes there to recover from

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 16.—(INS)—Ed Doyle, former Marine Corps crack shot, has bull's-eyed more than 75,000 "paper Nazis."

Undisputed holder for the last 21 years of a triple world's shooting record, Doyle uses his uncanny marksmanship to test Uncle Sam's new carbines for accuracy before they leave the big Winchester Repeating Arms Company.

His job is called "targeting." He shoots the semi-automatic carbine at three-inch bull's-eyes at 50 yards and at five-inch bull's eyes at 100 yards.

So expert is Doyle's marksmanship that if he misses, it is because the sight of his gun needs readjustment. Carbines don't graduate from his marksmanship course until they hit a "paper Nazi" in the bull's-eye. Doyle has already bull's-eyed more than 75,000 Winchester carbines.

Doyle first won world-wide recognition for his marksmanship as a member of the Marine Corps team squad of 1923. Then a 22-year-old sergeant, Doyle established the present triple-headed world's record for the Swiss match event, by shooting 201 consecutive bull's-eyes on the 500-yard range, on a 16-inch bull's-eye, instead of the standard 20-inch. The triple title thus includes consecutive hits, distance, and size of the bull's-eye.

Doyle also was a member of the Marine Corps team squad that won the national team match at Camp Perry, Ohio, in 1922. Thirteen years later, as a member of the Quinipiac Rifle Club, of New Haven, he helped set another world's record in the Palma team match at Camp Ritchie, Maryland, and the following year the National Rifle Association rated him as one of the nation's best small bore marksmen.

TWO-YEAR-OLD BOY IS DROWNED IN CANAL; WANDERS FROM HOME WITH A BABY COUSIN; MOTHER RECOVERS BODY

Valiant Attempt Made to Resuscitate David George, Jr., of Bristol Terrace I—Little Girl Liped Message to Relatives That David Was "Down There in the Water"

A two-year-old boy was drowned in the canal this morning when he wandered away from his home at 100 Schumacher Drive, Bristol Terrace I. The victim, David George, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David George, Sr., was found in the water by his mother, an aunt, Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, and the child's grandmother, Mrs. John King. They carried the tot to his home and summoned aid.

Bucks County Rescue Squad, Bristol Blood Donors Emergency Squad, Good Will Hose Company No. 3, Bristol police, and neighbors went to the aid of the victim.

Rescue squads worked with inhalators, resuscitators, and Dr. S. H. Lanyon and Dr. Philip Tulin arrived shortly after the rescue squads.

Despite the valiant efforts of those attempting to revive the little tot they were all in vain.

The mother had to be administered sedatives.

The story as related by friends of the family was that little David, in company with his cousin, Barbara Ann Gallagher, 2, who lives nearby had wandered to the canal while playing. When the children were missed from the lawn near their home, Mrs. George, Mrs. Gallagher, and the child's grandmother began an extensive search of the vicinity. They saw little Barbara Ann coming from the direction of the canal and when they inquired where David was the little girl in her lisping voice informed them that he was down there in the water.

The three adults ran to the canal and Mrs. George waded into the water up to her waist and pulled out her son. He was then rushed to his home.

In addition to the victim there is another son, John, 5. The father is employed as Fleetwings painter.

"Ladies Night" Conducted By the Men's Fellowship

Harry C. Stevens, head of the small arms department of Frankford Arsenal, gave a patriotic address when he appeared before the Men's Christian Fellowship League of Lower Bucks County, last evening, on the occasion of "Ladies Night." The program was in Bristol Methodist Church.

Mr. Stevens, introduced by the president of the Fellowship, Raymond Dewees, of Newportville, told much of the work of the Dies Committee, and particularly of the activities of that committee two years ago when it upset plans of enemy agents here to hinder factory production. He also gave some attention to juvenile delinquency and steps necessary to cope with it.

Guest vocalists favored with selections.

Honor Mothers at The Newportville Services

NEWPORTVILLE, May 16—The Sunday School of Newportville Community Church observed Mothers' Day on Sunday morning, the senior and junior Ladies' Bible classes taking part, and Mrs. James Barclay, teacher of the senior group, announcing the program.

The platform was decorated with plants and flowers. Mrs. Fred Kohler offered prayer, followed by Scripture reading by Mrs. Herman Becker. The senior mothers sang in unison "What A Friend We Have in Jesus." Mrs. John Lowrie favored by her daughter Naomi. The junior mothers sang "I Would Be True."

C. Burnley White then spoke briefly to the mothers. The primary department assembled in a group on the platform and sang three songs. Due to war conditions, plants were not distributed to all mothers as usual, but plants were given to Mrs. C. B. Collins as president of the Ladies' Senior Bible Class; to Mrs. William Beck and Mrs. George Erney, who have been ill; and to Mrs. Fred Cotshott and Mrs. Albert Thompson, the oldest mothers.

J. E. Scheidel pronounced the benediction. One hundred and forty-seven were present.

Those in the armed services attending Sunday School on Sunday were: Raymond Pierson, A. M. M. 2/c, from Atlantic City Naval Station, N. J.; and Clifford N. Ingraham, A. O. M. 2/c, from the Naval Air Station, Cape May, N. J.

Presenting a paper on the subject, "What a Mother Owe Her Child," at the Mothers' Day meeting of the Plumsteadville Grange, Mrs. Arthur Shurr brought out the point that a lack of parental supervision often is the cause for juvenile delinquency.

Juvenile delinquency, said Mrs. Shurr, may be considered a forerunner of what may follow in the life of the individual. Juvenile delinquency, she continued, cannot be blamed entirely upon the war, but because of the lack of discipline in the home. Principles which at one

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Allies Threaten Flanking Movement Against Gustav Line

Naples—Allied troops today threatened a decisive flanking movement against the Gustav line bulwark of Cassino by reaching the highway connecting that battered township with the sea.

German forces were hurled out of Spigno and strategic San Giorgio by hard-fighting American and French units which demoralized the southern sector of the enemy defense line and crushed all Nazi resistance in the Asinara Valley. Spearheads of Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's British Eighth Army severed the Cassino-Minturno lateral highway southwest of Cassino. "The Eighth Army now has little more than a mile to go to cut off Cassino from the rear," a battlefield dispatch said.

The Eighth Army's bridgehead in the Cassino sector now has been extended to two miles in depth. New spans are being thrown across the Rapido River to enable the steady augmentation of mechanical strength.

VIOLATORS OF THE LIQUOR LAWS ARE HEARD IN COURT

State Liquor Control Board
Enforcement Agents
Have Their Inning

FINES ARE IMPOSED

Some Had Untaxed Liquor
in Their Hotels; Some
Sold on Sundays

DOYLESTOWN, May 16—State Liquor Control Board enforcement agents had their inning in Bucks county criminal court yesterday when it was testified how they ingratiated themselves into the confidence of liquor licensees and then had them arrested for liquor law violations.

Antonio Crispino, 54, operator of the LaCote Hotel at Plumsteadville, pleaded guilty before President Judge Hiram H. Keller to five different counts of violations of the liquor laws.

Crispino, who was a barber in Chester for a year before coming to Bucks county, and who worked in Easton before that as a barber, testified that Charles A. Haines, an enforcement agent, came to his place on March 11 (Saturday), and remained after 12 o'clock at night, ordering beer, whiskey and some brandy. He made another visit on April 15 (Saturday) and stayed after midnight when he made other purchases.

It was testified that Haines had been at Crispino's place on at least five occasions before the evidence-gathering visits and that the defendant had come to know the agent as "Charlie" and Haines called the defendant "Tony." But Crispino did not know that Haines was a Liquor Control Board Agent. Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, representing Crispino, pointed out to the Court that the agent's investigation disclosed the fact that no other person except the agent himself had purchased liquor after the closing hour of 12 on Saturday night.

Judge Keller advised Crispino to get out of the liquor business at Plumsteadville even if it meant sacrificing his license, and the defendant assured the Court that negotiations are under way right now to sell out.

The Court imposed a fine of $200 and costs on the bill charging unlawful sale of liquor on Sunday and suspended sentence on another bill.

Anna M. Boland, owner of the Hartsfield Hotel, and her nephew, Charles Dugan, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of violation of the liquor laws pertaining to sales on Sunday and having liquor in possession that did not bear the Pennsylvania state stamp.

Judge Keller fined Mrs. Boland $100 and costs on one bill and suspended sentence on another. Dugan was fined $200 and costs on one bill and sentence was suspended on others.

Liquor Enforcement Officer testified.

MRS. WILLIAM CARVER

Mrs. William Carver, Boston, Mass., a former resident of Bristol, died on Wednesday after being ill a short time with pneumonia. Mrs. Carver, widow of the late William Carver, who operated a marble yard on Cedar street, has been residing in Boston with her sister since the death of her husband. Burial took place yesterday in Arlington Cemetery, near Ridgewood, N. J.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

AN AIR SERVICE COMMAND STATION "Somewhere in England"

May 16—Pilots, navigators, bombardiers, aerial runners—both officers and enlisted men with several tough missions under their belts are now relaxing in rest homes conducted by the Air Service Command.

Sgt. Andrew A. Moore, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Moore, of 342 Monroe street, Bristol, Pa., recently enjoyed a "recess from aerial war" in one of the Command's remodelled English country houses. Here, he donned casual clothes and relaxed in the restful atmosphere of an old manor house.

Before entering the Army, S/Sgt. Andrew A. Moore, Jr., was employed as a brakeman by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

He has completed 16 combat missions over enemy occupied territory in America's fight against Fascism.

has made exceedingly few poor speeches. Even those who disagree with his policies admit they have been presented well.

—O—

BUT Mr. Raymond Moley, for a number of years closer to Mr. Roosevelt than any other, and the late Gen. Hugh Johnson, who for a long time was his chief aide and intimate friend, have recorded that various persons, including themselves — did the writing. Among others to whom, from time to time, authorship has been ascribed are Mr. "Tommy" Corcoran, "Ben" Cohen, Rexford G. Tugwell, the late Louis Howe, Mr. Robert Sherwood and Mr. Archibald MacLeish. And in this ghost writer list, too, belongs former Judge Sam Rosenman, who is looked upon as the current message writer. It was he, for example, to whom was attributed the tax veto message, which caused Senator Alben Barkley's sensational revolt.

JUDICIAL PRECEDENTS

Again attention has been directed from within the Supreme Court—seven of the nine members of which were appointed by President Roosevelt and an eighth, Chief Justice Stone, promoted by him—to the internal conflicts besetting that tribunal, which have resulted in the overthrow of various established principles and doctrines of decisional law.

Before the American Law Institute, Justice Jackson expresses his concern over "the present low estate of the precedent" in the adjudication of cases. Two months ago when the court divided 5 to 4, he demanded in the dissent opinion: "Where does this court get authority to disregard the distinction Congress has created and to impose a single rule of its own making?"

Shortly before that Justice Roberts, joined by Justice Frankfurter, had denounced a majority finding that overruled a previous decision, charging that "this tendency has become so strong in this court as to shake confidence in the consistency of decision."

The strictures of Justice Roberts upon the court led to the inference that the fault lay mainly with a predilection of certain members of the court to exploit their individual philosophies even if they thereby made judicial hash of the law. The many separate opinions, as many as five in one case, go far to support such conclusion. But Justice Jackson in his Law Institute address advances a wholly different explanation that has at least the merit of novelty.

According to Justice Jackson, "haste and pressure are too ingrained in our modern lives to think courts can be free of them." The increase in the number of courts—courts of last resort, intermediate courts of appeal and special courts—has "increased the pace of decision and the output of opinion." In brief, legal opinion is subject to the same natural law that affects currency—"inflation of the volume decreases the value of each unit"—and "when so many issues of opinion compete for acceptance they inevitably suffer a discount."

This is a persuasive theory, but applying it to the Supreme Court one is required to gloss over much that has happened under the virtual reconstitution of that tribunal through deaths and resignations in the last five years. If the lower courts have become so ready to decide cases contrary to past decisions, is this to be laid to the "haste and pressure" of the times or to the fact that the Supreme Court is so confusingly divided within itself and is so prone to reverse its own precedents?

Certainly that court by its iconoclastic actions is not showing the guidance and leadership that it should extend to other jurisdictions.

General Patton is reported to have bragged that after he wins the war in Europe he will clean up the Japs. MacArthur will take care of that, George.

is gained that the only part of his speeches which the President wrote himself was the peroration. He always, said Mr. Moley, liked to write that himself, with a lead pencil. The rest was all written for him. There is nothing to criticize about that. So long as the ideas are his own, it is, perhaps, sensible enough for the President to save himself labor by employing gifted writers to do the work. Of course, there have been some Presidents who never let anyone write anything for them, but there have been plenty of others who took the line which Mr. Moley and General Johnson say Mr. Roosevelt takes—to wit, delegate the job to trusted and talented friends, and content himself with making revisions and writing the last paragraph.

HOWEVER, Mr. Michelson dissents from this. His contention is that no one writes the Roosevelt speeches; that Mr. Roosevelt is a much better phrase maker than any of his aides; that it is his custom after his aides have put their views on paper to read them carefully, then lie down on a sofa, put his hands behind his head and dictate the final speech. This is in complete contrast to the Moley-

Johnson statements on the subject—and to the general belief. There are several reasons for thinking the Moley-Johnson view sounder than that of Mr. Michelson. One is that, in their day, both Mr. Moley and General Johnson had far closer personal relationships with the President than Mr. Michelson ever achieved. They had his complete confidence and were aides in a sense Mr. Michelson never was.

ANOTHER reason is that Mr. Michelson never got in a position where he could take a detached view of Mr. Roosevelt—and, if one judges from his book—is not in such position now. Certainly, throughout, his adulation of Mr. Roosevelt and his general attitude toward him is that of an old family retainer rather than of an independent recorder. Also, there are the various inaccuracies scattered through the book, such, for example, as twice placing the Dayton evolution trial, at which he was present, in Kentucky, instead of Tennessee. And, of course, there are some who might consider as an additional reason for not accepting the Michelson view his gleeful account of his career as a faker on the Hearst newspapers. Even as Mr. Michelson tells the story forty years afterward, it is not one greatly to enhance confidence in him as a narrator. However, aside from these things the book is interesting, well written and not without humor, though it makes no contribution to political history.

IT IS somewhat surprising that a man who for 15 years has been in position to know what went on behind the scenes in politics apparently knew so little. Perhaps, it is because there wasn't a great deal to know. The "secrets" of politics are always exaggerated, as is the subtlety of politicians. Mr. Michelson may have not had any "secrets" to reveal or he may have been too cautious to do any revealing. At any rate, no one would call his a very outspoken book. It is a little strange that he is not more appreciative of Mr. Raskob and Mr. Shouse, as they are the men who really rescued him from the New York World and put him in position to make his reputation. And, perhaps it was to be expected that in defending himself from the charge of conducting a systematic "smear campaign" against Mr. Hoover after his election to the Presidency, Mr. Michelson should indulge in a lot of little sneers and jeers at Mr. Hoover, well calculated to sustain the charge. They do not improve the book. Nor add to his own stature.

time were considered good are frequently regarded by the young people as being antique.

Too many parents, she said, go to work and leave their children in charge of persons who are incompetent to take care of them. Train

a child in the way in which he should go and he will follow it, she said. "See that the children have good literature at their disposal, invite their friends into the home and give the children a religious training."

Activities of the Wycombe branch of the Red Cross were summarized at a meeting of the officers at the home of the chairman, Mrs. John Price Jones, near Pineville.

Report was made by Mrs. John W. Cooper, the treasurer, that a balance of $185.41 remains, and Mrs. Henry R. L. Eastwood gave a report for the surgical dressing committee.

According to Mrs. Eastwood, 32 persons were enrolled in the surgical dressing class. From November, 1942, until May, 1942, the members devoted 655 hours to the making of 13,188 dressings. She stated more workers are needed.

Community leaders were among the guests at a dinner meeting held in the school building at New Hope a few nights ago under the auspices of the local school board.

The purpose of the meeting was to acquaint people of the community with the schools, and during the evening a dinner was served by the girls in the home economics department under the supervision of Miss Althea M. Smith, director of that department.

Principal J. H. Herring introduced County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm, who commented upon the value of such gatherings, and suggested the establishment of a circulating library with headquarters at the school so that the citizens of the community would have occasion to go to the school more frequently.

Among the guests was Dr. Arthur H. Washburn, of the Solebury Boys' School faculty, who emphasized the importance of discipline, which, he said, is claiming the attention of educators all over the country. The Army and Navy, he said, are proving young men like and respect discipline, and added that he believes juvenile delinquency can be reduced by strict discipline.

39 Served at Banquet Which Honors Mothers

Honoring their mothers, members of the Sunday School class of Bristol Methodist Church taught by Mrs. William Mohr conducted the annual Mother-Daughter banquet last evening in the church social hall. Covers were placed for 39.

To each mother attending a carnation was presented; and Mrs. Norman Rapp, honored as the oldest mother in attendance, was given a basket of flowers, these being a memorial for the mother of Mrs. Edwin Ballinger.

The menu served was: Fruit cocktail, chicken noodle soup, celery, olives, roast young turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, asparagus, cole slaw, rolls, ice cream, fancy cakes, coffee.

The invocation was by Mrs. Paul Simpson; followed by the welcome by Mrs. W. E. Preston Haas; remarks, Mrs. Mohr; poem, Miss Dorothy Case; symphony harp selections, "The Bells of St. Mary's," "Annie Laurie," and "Alohae," Miss Winifred V. Tracy.

Three sketches followed, these being entitled: "Happiness Candles," "Court Session," and "Orange Aid."

Sgt. Ralph Amice, of Camp Davis, N. C., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Amice.

GRAND THEATRE

"A Guy Named Joe," the new movie at the Grand Theatre, is a mellow and different romance, a delightful mixture of realism and fantasy guaranteed to please all movie audiences. In the Air Force any pilot is "a guy named Joe," and in the film, both Spencer Tracy and Irene Dunne, who co-star, are pilots.

Tracy is cast as a daredevil and foolhardy pilot whose exploits are the despair of his superior officers and the adorable Ferry Command pilot who loves him, played by Miss Dunne. Sensing that his number is up, she begs him to return to the States with her as an instructor. He accedes, but in a last reckless fling he is killed bombing an enemy carrier.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Director Andre De Toth has discovered that Hollywood screen kids are too well fed for their own screen good. And when he came to a scene which required the youngsters to register strained hunger in all its poignancy for "None Shall Escape," story of the post-war trials of Nazi leaders, now showing at the Bristol Theatre, the boys and girls looked too sated for realism.

RITZ THEATRE

The Ritz Theatre is now showing "Flesh and Fantasy" and "Klondike Kate."

OUT WHERE THE MILK BEGINS

Where else in all the world today will you find peaceful country scenes like this? Americans alone, among the nations of the earth, can look to their farms for a sufficiency of food on which to grow and work and fight.

Right now, for example, the spring-tide supply of fine, rich milk from nearby Supplee farms is making an important contribution to that sufficiency, playing a vital part in three separate ways:

1. In taking care of the increased needs of the community for this essential food.

2. In bringing refreshing nourishment to the men in the nearby Navy and Coast Guard stations, local hospitals and Army centers.

3. In being processed into proper forms for shipment abroad to help nourish our armies and fighting friends.

And that's how it happens that OUR DELIVERY OF MILK, CREAM AND OTHER DAIRY PRODUCTS TO YOU MUST REMAIN LIMITED BY GOVERNMENT QUOTA—why we must ask you to continue to work out your supply with your milkman.

Even though you may not be able to order all the extra milk you want to quench your family's warm-weather thirsts—you can still, we're proud to say, take your share in the milk that's extra rich and extra nourishing—carefully guarded Supplee Sealtest Homogenized Vitamin D Milk with the cream mixed throughout.
